Weighty Matters Before Trustees

At a cost of approximately one hundred thousand dollars it is proposed to install a sewer system in this city.

The matter was brought up at a meeting of the city trustees last Tuesday night by Perry Newberry. He stated that, due to the rapid growth of the city, sanitary conditions were becoming intolerable.

City Attorney Argyll Campbell recommended that the proposed work be financed by a bond issue, proceeding under the improvement act of 1911 and the bond act of 1915.

Before anything definite is done, however, there will be a joint meeting of the trustees and members of the Carmel Sanitary District board to thoroughly discuss the matter.

The executors of the Ella Reid Harrison estate, having expressed a desire to discuss with the president of the board and the city attorney matters pertaining to the Ralph Chandler Memorial Library, these gentlemen [illegible] to San Francisco for that purpose.

It was announced that contractor Ruthven had agreed to resurvace San Antonio street, so that it would be a satisfactory roadway.

The owners of the new auto service station have agreed to connect with the main sewer on Ocean avenue, with the understanding that the city make provision to connect from Block 69. This was determined upon.

Fire chief J. E. Nichols was instructed to confer with the water company officials in the matter of a larger supply after 7 p.m., which is now inadequate—so the chief has reported to commissioner T. B. Reardon.

A petition, signed by twenty-six business people of this city, asking that a license be placed on peddlers, hawkers, etc., was read and filed. No action was taken on an ordinance previously prepared and read and recommended by the local Chamber of Commerce.

Forest Theatre Elects Officers

The recently elected board of directors of the Forest Theatre met last Monday night. The following officers were elected: President, Dr. A. E. Burton; vice-president, Miss Blanche Tolmie; secretary, Mrs. Susan C. Porter; treasurer, W. T. Kebbler; historian, Herbert Heron.

The secretary was directed to begin at once the work of preparing and issuing the rules and regulations for the forthcoming play competition.

Visiting Hotel People Enjoy Entertainment

California hotel men, assembled in conference this week at Del Monte, were variously entertained on the peninsula. Among the outstanding affairs were the Spanish dinner and entertainmnt in the Del Monte forest, put on by Carl Stanley, and the splendidly appointed tea given by Mr. and Mrs. John B. Jordan.

At the latter affair Frederick Preston Search's orchestra rendered several beautiful selections, Walter Kelsey and Mr. Search played a number of solos, and Mrs. Mabel Kegg sang, accompanied by Mrs Benj. Shaaro of Oakland.

Miss Mae Harris Anson and other ladies assisted Mrs. Jordan in serving tea.

This was decided at a meeting of local farm centers at Pajaro. The Elevator Corporation and the Extension Service of the University of California will also be represented at the fair.

Johnson Gets Decision

Both men were on their feet at the end of the first round, but Referee Ernest Michaelis decided that Johnson had won. Shand was awarded the loser,s end.

The above is not the detailed report of the conclusion of a boxing match. It is the outcome of a controversy as to commissions due on real estate sales conducted by Richard W. Johnson and Arthur T. Shand.

The case was taken to the justice court and Judge Michaelis decided in favor of the plaintiff.

The defendant has thirty days in which to appeal.

Commendation for Children's Work

Raymond Macdonald Alden, professor of English at Stanford University, writing in the Palo Alto Times, says of "The Bookhouse": "I have seen many sets of books prepared for the children of the household; have admired some of them moderately, and have bought more than one, but Olive Beaupre Miller's 'Bookhouse' is the only collection of the kind which has seemed to me to approximate perfection.

"It is certainly the only one known to me in which so high a standard of literary quality is maintained throughout. Not only the familiar classic authors for children, like Miss Alcott Dickens, Hawthorne, Kingsley and Stevenson are represented, as of course they should be, but there are fine selections chosen for children's tastes from the standard poets and others from such less familitr writers (to the young, I mean) as Cervantes, Ruskin, Bjornson, Tolstoy and Howells. There are also well-made adaptations from the great epic tales of the chief races of mankind. In the index volume, called the Latch Key, there is not only an extraordinarily complete and serviceable index but a descriptive account of both authors and types, not even omitting a fascinating genealogy of Mother Goose. Through this the young reader may easily be led to combine interest in good reading with interest in its sources."

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Kuster have as their guest for a few weeks Mrs. Kuster's mother, Mrs. Laura McDowell, of Los Angeles.

Mrs. Gene Byrnes is spending a month with her mother in New York City.

St. Anne's Guild of All Saints' church will meet in the rectory next Wednesday at 3 o'clock.

Two dollars a year will keep yourself or friends informed through the columns of the Pine Cone.

Kenneth Ward Will Recover From Injuries

Kenneth Ward, university student, son of Captain and Mrs. Louis Ward of this city, whose efforts to save life and property in the Berkeley fire nearly cost him his life, is resting easy in a Berkeley hospital

The young man's injuries, the full extent of which has not yet been determined, include a broken arm in two places, burns, abdomen badly cut, and deep lacerations on the neck.

No news has been received since Thursday, which relatives here take as a hopeful sign.

Artist Visitor to Study Abroad

Miss Margaret Frame of Regina, Saskatchewan, is among the art students who spent the summer in Carmel. This young Canadian artist, who is the daughter of the late Joseph Fulton Frame, K. C., one of the most distinguished members of the Canadian bar, exhibited the "Portrait of an Old Austrian Woman" at Arts and Crafts Hall this summer, where it was the subject of much favorable comment.

In this portrait, which was painted by Miss Frame in Regina last autumn, the youthful artist has achieved in a great measure the distinctive atmosphere she has striven for. This portrait was sent to the Forty-fourth Annual Exhibition of the Royal Canadian Academy, in Montreal, where it was hung.

This in itself was no small feat, the picture being painted without the benefit of criticism from teacher, when Miss Frame was only 19, but she was further honored by the following from the pen of the distinguished art critic, S. Morgan-Powell, when he spoke of the portrait as "a fine, strongly drawn and painted portrait of an old Austrian woman, by Margaret J. G. Frame, in which the modeling of the hands in particular is excellent."

Miss Frame began her studies with Inglis Sheldon-Williams, a noted English landscape and portrait painter, whose exhibits in the Royal Academy, London, are well known. She has also studied in Boston, where she was a student at the Museum of Fine Arts, and also received private instruction from Philip Hale. This summer she has been doing out-of-door sketching with Paul Mays. She is leaving Carmel in the near future for the east, and in the course of a few months will continue her studies in Paris.

Versatile, original and charming, Miss Frame's work has a certain future. The National Gallery in Ottawa has asked her to send some of her work to the British Empire Exhibition to be held in London from April 1 to September 1, 1924.

New Type of Construction is Going on Here

For a month or longer there has been a continual chuck-chuckling of the cement mixer—and it all means "Duplex Construction" and a home for Miss Marian Daniels on the Eighty-Acre tract in this city.

Mr. Clauser, the inventor of Duplex Construction, and F. Bohnett, who has been associated with him for three years, are here from San Jose to supervise the work. With twelve men on the job and a motley array of molds, a press and a cement mixer, the once vacant tract of land is now a humming spot of activity. During the past month all this activity has produced the 7000 blocks required for the three buildings, the main house of five rooms, a guest house of three rooms and a stable. The stable is practically competed, the guest house is well on its way and the foundation for the main house [illegible]

This duplex construction is considered the highest type of seientific construction developed in the history of building. It is unique in that it is built as though a house within a house. Two distinct walls of concrete are erected, leaving between them a continuous air space which makes the house absolutely free from the penetration of moisture or condensation, so common in buildings of a permanent nature. These walls are made up of a series of blocks, set in a hardening grout, each block is locked in place [illegible] it impossible to move the block out of position when your grout has set. Further strength is added to the wall by metal ties inserted at intervals along the wall.

Built like a thermos bottle or fireless cooker, it is cool in the summer and warm in the winter. No lath and no furring strips are used in the plastering work. The plaster is applied directly on the surface of the walls, both inside and outside, making the plaster become a part of the wall itself instead of being applied to wood or metal lath, which, due to the elements, disintegrates, while concrete continues to grow stronger.

During the past three years there have been built over 500 Duplex construction buildings, from small garages to huge theater buildings, residences, churches, etc. The cost of construction is declared to be about a stand-off with good frame construction and considerably cheaper than any other permanent construction.

This is a new thing in Monterey county, and if you are interested in the progress of building go up to the Eighty Acre tract and watch this process of manufacturing duplex blocks.

Pine Cone's Log of Literature & Art

An Englishman Americanized

The gods must have been having a revel on Mount Olympus and there was a rainbow in the sky when Pelham Wodehouse was born. Strangely enough, for he is a humorist, the event occurred in Engand—at one of those places with a whole string of names denoting the town, county, road, farm, grove, house, nearby stream and current state of the crops.

After going through the customary boys' schools, colleges, etc., and getting married, he set up in business as a writer in London; but realizing that there was no proper outlet for such effervescent humor as his in staid old England, he came to the United States in 1909. Right away he caught the American style; in fact, his brand of fun was just what we had been needing. He has tickled the sides of Americans with more than a dozen novels and innumerable short stories, musical comedy lyrics and plays. One of his most smashing successes is "Three Men and a Maid."

Book of Poems by Japanese

A new book of poems entitled "Wind of Spring" has just been published by Kashin Shimizu, secretary of the San Jose Japanese association and editor for the Japanese-American newspaper in San Francisco. This newest work of the Japanese poet, which contains 51 poems covering a wide range of subjects, is characterized by a rare artistry and beauty of phrase.

The poet dedicates this latest book of verse to the Californians in memory of the nine years he has spent in this state.

Edith Daley has written the preface and Chiura Obata has ably illustrated the verses in brush stroke.

De Maurier to See Father's Play

The coming of Sir Gerald de Maurier to see at first hand how his father's beloved tale of "Trilby" is presented on the silver screen is of more interest to the United States generally than most of the foreign visitors who go to Hollywood these days. Sir Gerald bears a very new title which he acquired in the New Year's honors of 1922 for his able management of and appearance at Wyndham's theater. He is both an actor in and director of this fashionable playhouse on Charing Cross road and his productions always make an especial appeal to Queen Mary, who entertains all the younger friends of the royal family there. Sir Gerald, son of a master novelist and artist, chooses the footlights as a profession, much to the chagrin of his father, who had hoped for a literary successor. He married an actress of considerable repute in Great Britain, Miss Muriel Beaumont, and they have three daughters. Sir Gerald, his wife and family, live in a pretty home at Hampstead. He intends to take in all the sights from New York to California, including a short stay in Washington. He was educated at Harrow and has several school friends and classmates at the British embassy.

Patrons Themselves the Censors

"Another ten years will see the passing of the movie censor, declares Mrs. A. L. Adams, chairman of the Chicago board of motion picture censorship, who says the present-day picture director and the present-day star need little supervision in their art.

"It will not be long until such supervision is entirely superfluous," Mrs. Adams asserts. "Directors do not want to offend the public, and they have learned that the public wants clean pictures. Censors, however, can make few hard and fast rules. They have to judge each picture individually.

"Censorship, like the movies themselves, is undergoing an evolution. But it cannot be abolished for some time yet because people sometimes read into a picture what is not there."

Prof. Alden Tells of Dickens' Unfinished Tale

The Carmel Reading Circle is near the end of the reading of "Edwin Drood." Prof. Raymond M. Alden has prepared for the circle a resume of the endings which have been written for this unfinished Dickens story. It is proposed to read one or more of these.

The readings are open to all; no one need wait for a formal invjtation. They are held Monday evenings from 8 to 10, at Gray Gables, Lincoln street and Seventh avenue.

Prof. Alden writes as follows:

An enterprising American writer is responsible for a sequel to "Edwin Drood," in a work called "John Jasper's Secret" (Peterson and Brothers, 1871, pp. 408), in the preface to which the hope is expressed that a benefit as well as a pleasure is thus conveyed to the world "on setting partially at rest the multitudinous speculations to which the non-explanation of the 'Mystery' has given rise." This work, the authorship of which has been wrongly attributed to Wilkie Collins, first appeared as a serial in a weekly journal called "The Chimney Corner" (New York and London, 1871), and was afterwards published (from October, 1871, to May, 1872) by a London firm in eight monthly shilling parts with green pictorial wrappers, of uniform size with the original story, and having wooden illustrations, the latter being borrowed from the American work. The full title of the English edition (the subtitle is slightly different from that in the transatlantic production) is "John Jasper's Secret; being a narrative of Certain Events following and explaining 'The Mystery of Edwin Drood'," publishing offices, No. 342, Strand, 1872 (pp. 252). As a literary curiosity, it is often catalogued at nearly double the price of Dickens' unfinished novel.

A work of a similar character, and in three volumes, was launched by Remington and Co. in 1878. It was entitled "A Great Mystery Solved: being a Sequel to the 'Mystery of Edwin Drood'," the author, Gillan Vase, stating in the preface (dated "Hanover, July 12, 1878") that he commenced it as an amusement, and was induced to publish the book when it eventually assumed large proportions. A curious production in the form of a volume on Spiritualism, entitled "Rifts in the Veil," by W. H. Harrison (London, 1878), is described as "an alleged post-mortem work by Charles Dickens," and purports to contain particulars of a continuation of "Edwin Drood," which is said to have been inspired by a medium, the article occupying thirty closely printed pages. A like production, and perhaps the most remarkable of all these unauthorized "continuations," emanates from America; it has the following diffuse, not to say "uncanny," title: "The Mystery of Edwin Drood. Part the Second by the Spirit Pen of Charles Dickens, through a Medium; embracing also that Part of the Work which was published prior to the Termination of the Author's Earth-Life." It contained two prefaces (by the "Medium and author respectively, the latter signed and dated by the publisher, "Thos. P. James, Brattleboro, Vt., September 25, 1873"), and a "Dedication to the Poor" (pp. [XVI] 488).

The nom de guerre "Orpheus C. Kerr" is associated with the authorship of at least adaptations of "Edwin Drood." One of these appeared in the "Piccadilly Annual" (1870); a second took the form of a booklet (undated), entitled, "The Mystery of Mr. E. Drood," and was issued by Messrs. Ward, Lock and Tyler; but the third and most striking of this trio of publications is "The Cloven Foot" (New York and London, 1870), which is really an extended version of the last mentioned work; here the story is made to conform to American scenes, characters, custom and nomenclature. An "outgrowth" of Dickens' uncompleted tale, entitled "The Wellfleet Mystery," by Mrs. C. A. Read, appeared in the "Weekly Budget" during 1885, with illustrations.

PENALIZING CULTURE

Through the public spirit of music loving citizens of Atlanta who have combined to furnish a sufficient guarantee, the Georgia metropolis has been enjoying short seasons of grand opera in recent years. The Georgia legislature has risen to the occasion of levying a prohibitive tax of $2500 on each grand opera performance, the argument being that grand opera is patronized only by the New York plutocracy and sung by foreigners in a strange tongue, especially Italian.

European and some South American countries subsidize grand opera, on the theory that the development of this highest form of music, seldom profitable commercially, is worthy of encouragement. The government of Georgia has fallen into the hands of a pretty cheap bunch of demagogues who are reactionary enough, however, when it comes to legislation affecting tenants, wage-earners, debtors, common schools, roads, lynching and other things that are really worth while in their relation to the lives of everyday people.

DISCRIMINATION REMOVED

There are about 70,000 women on Uncle Sam's payroll. Most of them are affected by the reclassification act passed in the closing days of the last Congress. This act makes salary classifications on the sole basis of work performed and not on sex. This avoids unfair discrimination for either sex and will benefit women, who are less well established in government employ, being newer in it. There are, as yet, more men than women on the committees having charge of the administration of this act. This is natural since a much larger proportion of men than women workers are concerned and women have not yet worked their way up to these positions. There have been many appointments of women recently and the women appointed are found to be especially able and satisfactory. Women employed by the government will rejoice in the new feeling of security and justice which this fact gives them.

A YOUNG INDUSTRY, BUT A GREAT ONE

The automobile industry in the United States is comparatively new. In 1899 it was so unimportant that data concerning it were reported in the census as part of the carriage and wagon industry. Since 1899 its increase has been phenomenal. The number of wage earners was 12,049 in 1904; 75,721 in 1909; 127,092 in 1914, and 343,115 in 1919. The number of wage earners in 1919 was more than 28 times the number in 1904. The average annual earnings per wage earner as computed from the census data increased from $594 in 1904 to $643 in 1909; to $802 in 1914, and to $1431 in 1919. The average full-time earnings per week of males in all occupations are $33.19, and of females $22.05.

This industry, like the iron and steel industry, is a very good index of the general business condition of the country. The automobile is no longer a luxury; it is a necessity.

Mr. Nifty says wear

Stein Bloch
Smart Clothes

Words Without Meaning—

For example—The word "Exclusive."

It means nothing unless backed by a product whose name means a whole lot. There are dozens of makes of men's clothing for which we prefer that some other store claim exclusive control in this city. But for Stein-Bloch Smart Clothes we are not only glad but proud to claim exclusive representation.

A variety of models—such as THE SAXON, in patterns that are "exclusive" in the sense that they appeal to the man with discriminating taste.
